A: You could use this regex: `^\w+@([a-z0-9]+(\.[a-z0-9]+)*\.[a-z]{2,4})$`
See regex demo The regex pattern matches one or more alphanumeric characters at the start of the string, then at least one @, then one or more alphanumeric characters enclosed in square brackets, and finally the rest of the string.

Q: How to change the default state of a Cell to Pressed in swift I have a custom cell and I want that the state of that cell is Pressed when the app starts. Currently I am saving a bool value and if that bool value is true when the app starts it is already pressed. Here is my CellDelegate: `protocol CellDelegate { func cellDidPress() }` Here is my Cell: `class TableCell: UITableViewCell { var didPress: Bool = false @IBOutlet weak var column: UILabel! @IBOutlet weak var row: UILabel! @IBAction func didPress(_ sender: UIButton) { didPress = true self.delegate?.cellDidPress() }` The thing is, if my app is already running when the didPress method is called it already does the thing. I don't want that.

A: You can store the last state of the cell in a global variable of your app, like this: `class Cell: UITableViewCell { weak var delegate: CellDelegate? //...other code }` Then update your cellDidPress function: `func cellDidPress() { self.delegate?.didPress() }` Now if your app is already running when the didPress method is called, the last state of the cell will be used.

Q: Renaming files using path relative to the current file? Using `rename. -n's/WOMEN/WOMEN+BOO/g'` works. But, I need to do it relative to the current file,
